

Volunteer Role Profile

Role	Education Assistant Volunteer
Line Manager	Amy Horton, Community Engagement Officer
Location	Nosterfield Nature Reserve
Minimum Commitment	Term-time weekday opportunity, 1-2 days per month

1. What to expect from this role

This is an opportunity to build your experience and support LUCT to provide a fun and rewarding educational experience for young people when they attend one of our educational visits.

You don't have to be an expert naturalist or a teacher, but if you have enthusiasm to share knowledge and inspire our young visitors to learn and get hands on with nature you'll be making a great contribution to our team's efforts!

2. What you will be doing

As an Education Assistant Volunteer, you'd be helping educational visits run smoothly by providing back up on activities, helping to set up and clear away equipment, checking resources and being that very important extra pair of hands.

3. The skills you'll need

- A keen interest in wildlife, conservation and the environment
- An enthusiasm for outdoor education and willingness to learn new skills
- A resourceful and flexible approach to be able to communicate with a wide variety of ages and abilities of children.
- The ability to support a fun and active educational session with a group of students and their teacher.

4. Training

We'll give you the training, guidance and materials to support our educational sessions.
